ement Which Makes the Huge Blocks Like a Single Stone.

Over 4,000 feet above the sea, and early 6,000 feet below the great peak of San Jacinto, in Riverside County there has now reached the height of He feet what is probably the best built dam in America, says the Irrigation Age. It is in a very narrow gorge of solid rock, and bulit of blocks of granite of from three to five tons each, no small stone being used. The spaces between these are filled with rich concrete, mixed by machinery and rammed into place This makes a monolith of the whole

tructure, with the advantage of hav ng more flexibility than any other dam

Its factor of safety is very heavy, and its peculiar construction will make as nearly earthquake-proof as it is ossible for a dam to be. With stone of such size, it could stand

ided, and 250 artesian wells are there pouring out over two thousand inches of water. This will build up one of the most prosperous settlements in the new county, with quite a town and alfalfa fields and orchards on every water is the finest of fruit land, and upon which the artesian water cannot be taken.

I'pon this the water from Lake Hemett will be led by pipe and cement ditch and finme down the canyon with a fall of 2,008 feet in a few miles, which will give power enough to run electric roads and lighting plants, besides considerable for manufacturing.

I'pon this mesa or bench land the Company already owns some eight thousand acres of choice land, over which it will distribute water, and it will undoubtedly sell water to the adjacent lands if the owners prefer to keep them instead of selling them to the Company. While considerable has been done here in the past without any irrigation the use of water so far surpasses the best results without it that the sale of all the water they can reservoir is assured.

This type of dam was selected mainly on account of its economy of cement. The hauling of cement up a long mountain road was a serious item. It is much stronger than ordinary rubble masonry, less apt to crack under any sudden shock and also heavier for the same bulk of material.

Where a savage stremm has to be fought and there is any question about the sufficiency of the waste way, it is the best type of dam if the cleavage of the rock will permit the getting out of large blocks. The overflow cannot in South America and Egypt.

Heraldic Signs Known Among the North American Indians,

There is a question which constantly naunts the antiquarian mind like a ghost in an old house, says the Lonion Saturday Review, That question is, how did triffing matters-a song, a is, how did trifling matters—a song, a story, a game, a toy—come to be scattered widely among the most remote and ignorant people.

In the case of customs and of myths we may often deem that the mind of man reacts allke to the same impulses from nature or from human needs. An ancestor of Gibbon, who was a herald and had been Blue Mantle, retired to America in the seventeenth century, and there he found heraldic bearings among the red men of Virginia. The savage dancers "were painted, some party per pale," gul' and 'sab,' some party per resse' of the same colors,' whence Edward Gibbon inferred that heraldry was ingrafted naturally into the sense of the human race." That is, heraldry is an "innate idea."

As Max Muller remarks in his new volume of "Lectures on Theosophy." we can no longer accept this theory of lonate ideas and of "party per fesse," or crests, as ready-made parts of the human intellect. Certain arrangements of colors, certain indications of lineage by crests, are attractive and convenient; so they have been adopted everywhere. It is more puzzling when we find what is called in India the "svastika." a cross with legs at right angles to the man limbs, not only existing as a sacred emblem in India, but carved on stones in South America.

This does not seem to have an obylous tory, a game, a toy-come to be scat-emblem in India, but carved on stones in South America.

This does not seem to have an obvious original meaning as a symbol. Is it merely an ornamental design to which the Indian mind later attached a sacred sense? It is found on pottery from Hissariik, Dr. Schliemann's Troy, and on old Mexican pottery. If it is only a piece of decoration, like the Greek key pattern and wave pattern, also found in old Foru, we may, perhaps, decide that the human mind naturally hits upon simple patterns, like the spirals of Mycensen art, found also in the ruined palace of Kuelaten, in Exypt, and in New Zealand and Celtic art.

We can conceive that the pattern spread from Exypt to Greece, and thence to the Nolsemen and Celts, but we can scarcely imagine that it was carried in prehistoric times to New Zealand, Again, Mr. Tyter has traced an Oriental form of backgammon to Mexico, and we cannot be certain whether a rather complicated game reached America from Asia, or was independently invented by the Aztecs.

with the body. The Egyplacas, of course, as a civilized people, had for thousands of years been familiar with wheels, and the toy, though rare in kind, has nothing to arouse curiosity.

Hut it is another matter when Mr. Morse discovers a precisely similar Alno toy, probably some 299 years old. The Alnos are a peculiarly hatry race, who have a fable that they are descended from bears, which they ignorantly worship.

sa a civilized people, had for thousands of years been familiar with wheels, and the toy, though rare in kind, has nothing to arouse curiosity.

But it is another matter when Mr. Morse discovers a precisely similar Alno toy, probably some 209 years oil. The hade been such that they are descended from bears, which they ginoranily worship.

They are, or very lately were, savages in a low grade, and with wheels they have no acquaintance any more than Lisidesiale had before Scott Irove the first dogcart tarough the region.

Mr. Morse decides that the lard, which he engraves, is not of Japanese work—the wheels have the peculiarity of being "irregulary ovate, rather than circular." The hole for the string is in the tail, and the irregular wheel makes the bird hop when it is dragged. Here, then, we find a rare form of Egyptian toy, about 36 A. D., and at the ends of the earth, among the hairy Ainosa—a similar toy, comarkable for possessing wheels, otherwise uninsed by the Ainos. The problem is, has the pattern filtered far East in some unknown manner or has it been independently invented, wheels and all, by some Aino genius, who never carried them away in the builde, and so, when she arranged to go home as few and so, when she arranged to go home as few and so, when she arranged to go home as few and so, when she arranged to go home as few and so, when she arranged to go home as few and so, when she arranged to go home as few and so, when she arranged to go home as few and so, when she arranged to go home as few and subtinuity and the same.

It was late when Mr. Blobbs got up the better moraing, and he hustled around his bedroom like a wild man. When it came time for him to put on his trousers he plunged into a wardrobe and pulled down all the garments that were on the hooks. Then, says the Buffalo Express, he fell on his knees and pawed the pille over nervously. He handled every garment twice and did not find what he wanted life swore three separate and distinct outles and out of the door and yelled again "Mary!"

There was no reply. Blobbs poked his head out of the door and yelled again "Mary!"
